MX lists the series as premiering at 24:00 on Saturday, which is effectively Sunday at 12:00 a.m. JST. ^ Adult Swim lists the series as premiering at 2:00 a.m. ET/PT on Saturday, which is effectively Sunday.^[18] ^ TV Guide erroneously stated that the English version of "The Legru Corridor" was originally aired on the night of December 28–29, 2013^[17] but Toonami did not air this episode on that night.^[37] ^ On some streaming platform site Dasiki, Episode 14.5 were labelled as 15 with all episodes after labelled with episode number one higher than others (e.g. episode 15 labelled as #16) due to system restriction.^[52] ^ Sword Art Online II premiered in Tokyo MX's Saturday 23:30 (11:30 p.m. JST) time slot.^[55] ^ Adult Swim lists the series as premiering at 1:00 a.m. ET/PT on Saturday, which is effectively Sunday. ^ The first episode was screened at special events held in the United States, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Korea and Japan before the television premiere between June 29 and July 4, 2014.^[55]^[57] ^ All English titles are taken from Crunchyroll. ^ Sword Art Online: Alicization premiered with a special one-hour episode, with pre-screenings in several countries on September 15, 2018. ^ The English dub of episode 6 of Alicization originally aired on March 17, but due to a broadcast error six minutes into the episode that caused it to freeze, it had to be skipped for the next show on the schedule. The full uninterrupted episode was uploaded hours later on Adult Swim's website. Toonami re-aired the episode on March 24, pushing back episode 7 for a back-to-back airing with episode 8 the following week on March 31.^[96] ^ The first 2 episodes were screened on October 6, 2019 at Madman Anime Festival Perth, Australia.^[119] and at Anime Fest @ NYCC in New York City, United States.^[120] References [10] "Sword Art Online Light Novels About Virtual MMO Ge Anime".
